

COMMENCE WORK ON IMPROVEMENT

OLD SIDEWALKS, CURBS AND GUTTERING ON FRANKLIN STREET ARE BEING TORN UP BETWEEN VINE AND INDIANA STREET.

TO EMPLOY LARGE FORCE

The plan of improving the square began to take shape this morning when a force of men was put to work tearing up the sidewalks and curbs on Franklin street between Vine and Indiana streets. All of the old sidewalks and curb and guttering on that part of Franklin street to be included in the square improvement will be torn up before the work of laying the new walks and curbs is commenced.

After the sidewalks, curbs and gutterings on Franklin street are constructed, the work on the street will be commenced. This will be finished before any work is started on either of the other three streets to be improved. The contractors have not yet decided which street will be improved after Franklin is completed, but it probably it will be Indiana.

Only a small force of men are now working on the improvement. However, the contractors will increase the force as quickly as possible. By the first of next week, a force of between twenty and twenty-five men will be employed.

HICKS ON JUNE WEATHER.

A reactionary storm period will bring a decided storm condition on and touching the 9th, 10th, 11th and 12th. At this period we enter into the June solstice disturbances. Daily thunder storms with an excess of electricity, wind rain and hail, may be looked for. Tornadoes may be looked for, and your locality may be in their path. Change to very much cooler will follow about the 16th to 19th.

A reactionary storm period will make itself severely felt on and touching the 20th, 21st and 22nd. A regular storm period is central on the 26th, the new moon falling on the same day. All storms during the last half of June will be centered in nature—will move in directions out of the ordinary, often doubling back over their tracks after they have supposedly passed off to the east. We believe there will be too much rain in the month of June, for best agricultural interests, except in New England States, and the extreme southern and southwestern sections. A marked seismic period is central on the 26th, covering the 23rd to the 29th.

DEPAUW ACADEMY COMMENCEMENT

The DePauw Academy commencement exercises began on Sunday, June 4th, with the Baccalaureate sermon, which was held in the College Avenue Methodist church. Rev. F. W. Hixson of Crawfordsville has been secured to deliver the sermon. The order of service was as follows:

1. March in B flat..... Faulkes
2. Hymn 5 (all standing)
3. Prayer..... Samuel B. Town
4. Solo..... Raymond Jackson
5. Scriptural Reading
6. Gloria Patri.
7. New Testament Lesson—Reading by Mr. I. A. Wilson.
8. Hymn 702.
9. Sermon—Rev. Fred W. Hixson, Crawfordsville, Ind
10. Benediction.
11. Postlude in N. major, Shelby Miss Potter.

The commencement program is as follows:

1. Invocation—Rev. Bert D. Beck.
2. Solo—Dean McCutchan.
3. The Commencement Address—Rev. Ernest C. Wareing, Brazil.
4. Violin Solo—Paul Benedict
5. Presentation of Diplomas—by Principal Albert Wilson
6. Benediction.

The commencement of the Academy will be Friday, June 9th in Meharry Hall. The graduating class numbers twelve as follows: Mr. Badger, Miss Bogue, Mr. Frazier, Miss Little, Mr. Makey, Mr. Marsh, Miss McGregor, Mr. Todd, Miss Mills, Mr. Morris, Mr. Perry, Miss Richards.

The funeral services of Mrs. Louisa J. Phillips, age 71, whose death occurred at her home in Fillmore, Saturday evening, were held at the Methodist church, at Fillmore at 10 o'clock this morning. Rev. Kemper officiated. The body was taken from Fillmore to Amo for burial. Mrs. Phillips is survived by three sons and two daughters, namely: George Phillips Mrs. Millard Nichols and Mrs. Fran West, of Fillmore, and Claude Phillips, of Reno.

THE TRUSTEES IN DEAD LOCK

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENTS' RACE IS BEING STUBBORNLY FOUGHT—PHILIP HUTCHESON IN LEAD DURING THE MORNING AND EARLY AFTERNOON.

VOTING RECORD IS BROKEN

The election of a County Superintendent by the township trustees scheduled for today resulted in a deadlock during the morning and early afternoon. At half past three o'clock the 18th ballot had been taken without an election and indications were that many more ballots would have to be taken before an election could be declared. Up to the 19th ballot there had been five candidates but in this ballot a new candidate appeared in Oscar Thomas, present superintendent. He got one vote in the 59th ballot and increased it to 2 in the 62nd ballot.

The real strength of the five avowed candidates during the balloting was Hurst 2, Irwin 2, Hutcheson 5, Wright 3 and Wallace 2. Each candidate seemed to hold his strength and the balloting showed little change during the day.

Hutcheson led during the early balloting having as many as 6 votes on several ballots. Eight votes are required for election.

Another new candidate developed in the 70th ballot, when Roscoe Todd of Floyd township received one vote. At 3:15 o'clock the 77th ballot had been taken and the trustees seemed to be as hopelessly in deadlock as ever. When the 77th ballot had been taken, the record for county superintendents elections was broken. The record for the number of ballots previous to today was 76. This election occurred several years ago and Sam Harris was the winning candidate.

The seventy-eighth ballot taken at 3:30 o'clock resulted as follows:

- Hurst—1.
- Irwin—2.
- Hutcheson—5.
- Wright—3.
- Wallace—2.
- Thomas—1.

The meeting of the Trustees was called to order at 10 o'clock in the County Auditor's office. County Auditor D. V. Moffett, who under the law, calls the meeting and presides during the organization, asked that on account of his recent illness, C. C. Gillen be allowed to serve as his deputy during the meeting. This was acceptable to the trustees.

The first business of the meeting was the roll call which showed that the following trustees were present:

- Jackson Tp.—Ben Walls.
- Franklin Tp.—Nathan Call.
- Russell Tp.—H. M. Grimes
- Clinton Tp.—Ed Thomas.
- Madroe Tp.—D. V. Etcheson.
- Floyd Tp.—Fred Todd
- Madison Tp.—J. W. Stroube.
- Greencastle Tp.—George Landes.
- Marion Tp.—Otto B. Rector.
- Warren Tp.—William Masten
- Washington Tp.—A. D. Chew.
- Jefferson Tp.—Oliver Stringer
- Cloverdale Tp.—Oscar Michaels.
- Mill Creek Tp.—E. C. Kivett.

Fred Todd placed Nathan Call in nomination as permanent chairman of the meeting. The motion was seconded by Ed Thomas, and Mr. Call was unanimously chosen. On the call for nominations for County Superintendent, Oliver Stringer placed the name of Forest G. Hurst, of Jefferson township, before the trustees. Robert Irwin, of Madison township was nominated by J. W. Stroube, Philip Hutcheson, of Washington township was nominated by D. V. Etcheson, L. G. Wright, of Warren township, was nominated by Ben Walls and Frank Wallace was nominated by Otto Rector. On a motion of Ed Thomas the trustees then went to the assembly room to begin the balloting for the new superintendent. William Masten and Ed Thomas were chosen tellers.

The first ballot resulted: Hurst—2.

Irwin—2.
Hutcheson—4.
Wright—4.
Wallace—2.

There was very little change in the standing during the first 38 ballots which were taken before the noon recess. The first 38 ballots developed that the real strength of each candidate is:

- Hurst—2.
- Irwin—2.
- Hutcheson—5.
- Wright—2.
- Wallace—2.

There was only slight changes from this vote during the entire morning's balloting.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS ATTEND IN A BODY.

The services at the Christian church Sunday were of special interest. In the morning the members of the K. of P. lodge were the guests of the church. The chorus under the direction of Mrs. Frank Hays had prepared special music which was greatly enjoyed. The names of the deceased members of the lodge were read, as were also the names of those who were members at its first organization.

In the evening the Children's day program was given. The house was beautifully decorated for the occasion and the great crowd that gathered showed their appreciation of the earnest efforts of the committee to give them an inspiring program.

Those who drilled the children and assisted in preparing the evening's program were Mrs. Bartley, Mrs. Young, Mrs. Vermilion and Miss Susie Hopwood.

The following is from the morning address of the pastor which dealt with the factors at work which indicate the dawn of universal peace.

"We are living; we are dwelling
In a grand and awful time;
In an age on ages telling,
To be living is sublime."

The honored head of our nation, President Taft, dropped the suggestion over a year ago, that the time was near at hand when the leading nations of the earth should adjust their differences through a Board of Arbitration. It did not create much comment for discussion at that time. But a short time ago Mr. Taft indicated that so far as this nation is concerned he believed it ready to take steps to enter into an agreement with the mother country across the sea to settle all differences by arbitration. This time our president's suggestion met with the hearty response from Sir Edward Gray, from A. J. Balfour, the great leader of the Unionists and from all the prominent statesmen of England.

The 17th Annual Conference on International Arbitration has just closed at Lake Mahouk. Representatives from various nations were in attendance. Statesmen, Diplomats, Educators, Ministers, Business Men and some of whom are the greatest leaders in this movement were present. At this conference William Jennings Bryan made an eloquent plea for the treaty just as President Taft had offered it to the nation's with no restrictions of any sort. Mr. Bryan said it should be offered to all other nations and this sentiment was echoed in every speech.

DEATH OF MISS AGNES R. RANKIN.

Miss Agnes Rosabelle Rankin, who died at Indianapolis Saturday, June 3, was a native of Greencastle, and was well known here. Her death will be sincerely mourned by a large circle of relatives and friends.

She graduated in the classical course in DePauw in 1872 and has been engaged in the teaching profession or over thirty-five years. For twenty years she has been a teacher in the Shortridge High School. She was a most worthy representative of a highly intellectual family, and was a much esteemed member of the Meridian Street Methodist Episcopal church, at Indianapolis.

Funeral services will be conducted at the family residence, 1832 North Alabama Street, by her pastor, Dr. Joshua Stansfield tomorrow morning and the interment will take place at 9 a. m. in Forest Hill cemetery, Greencastle.

Theodore Boes went to Indianapolis on business this morning.

COLD STORAGE LAW IN FORCE

THE STATE OFFICIALS ANNOUNCE THAT IT WILL BE ENFORCED IN THE WAY OF LETTER AND SPIRIT AND FULL PENALTIES FOR VIOLATIONS WILL BE ASSESSED.

AFFECTS ALL THAT IS EATEN

Cold storage products now in storage plants in Indiana must be eaten or made way with in the next nine months to comply with the cold storage act which went into effect Thursday morning. Circulars announcing the rigid enforcement of the law have been sent out by State Inspector H. E. Barnard and the storagers are going to unload in compliance.

Hereafter all eggs which have been in cold storage will be branded as such and the law goes to the extent of specifying the size of the brand on the same.

The indications are that local health officers will aid to the utmost in the enforcement of the law, and violators may expect the fine of from $10 to $200 if convicted of law violation.

All eggs sold by poultry dealers or retailers must be candied and absolutely fresh under the law now in effect and the least decomposition lays the seller liable to prosecution. The farmers must be sure their eggs are fresh when they sell them for they are liable to the same prosecution as the retailers.

Eggs are not alone on the cold storage announcement list. Meat, fish, butter, cheese, poultry, fruits, game, farm or garden products, and any perishable foodstuff which have known the art of storage means that the egg must be fresh from the producer and never stored.

Nine months is the limit for cold storage and the authority by courts is given for officers to drench all foodstuffs held in storage over that time with kerosene and otherwise destroy it.

LOCALS WIN FROM PARIS, ILL., TEAM.

The Greencastle Grays defeated the Paris, Ill., baseball team, at Paris, Sunday afternoon by a score of 5 to 3. The game is the first game that the Paris team has lost on its home grounds this year. The local men out hit the Paris team and showed superior knowledge of the game in every inning. Shirley, who pitched for the locals allowed only five hits. The Greencastle men got next to the Paris pitcher for nine hits: two triples, three two-base hits and four singles.

ORATORICAL FRATERNITY ELECTS ITS OFFICERS

Ferdinand Tannenbaum of This City Chosen Vice-President of Tau Kappa Alpha.

Tau Kappa Alpha, the fraternity made up of college orators and debaters, held a banquet at Indianapolis Friday evening and also elected the following officers: Harvey B. Stout, Jr., coach of the Butler College debating teams, president; Ferdinand Tannenbaum, of Wabash College, vice-president; Scott Brewer, of DePauw University, secretary-treasurer, and Fred E. Schortemeier of Butler College, publicity counsel. Letters were read from a number of alumni members, including former Senator Albert J. Beveridge. The convention will be held at DePauw university next year.

The discussion at the banquet centered about what was termed "the changed view of oratory" and various speakers emphasized the folly of the old method and the effective value of the new. Practically all emphasized the point that the public no longer is fooled by high sounding words, alliterative phrases and carefully-timed gestures, but that the public now demands a well-developed and foreful line of thought presented with sincere earnestness. Notwithstanding the passing of the silver-tongued idol of the past, it was declared that the art of public speaking exercises a greater influence today than ever before.—Crawfordsville Daily Journal.

Obituary.
As the glory of the autumn with the ripening of the leaves, Marks the ending of the bravest, and the binding of the sheaves So there seems a fitting likeness in the beauty of the way,

That marked the peaceful ending of the life that's passed today; And the waning of that season, with its fruits all bravely won, Blends with the finished life as though the two were one.

Mrs. Martha Nicholson Shockley Smyth, daughter of John A. Nicholson, was born March 14, 1820 in Hamilton county, near North Bend, Ohio. Here she lived until 1839, when she was united in marriage to Isaac Shockley, with whom she took up her home in Middletown, Ohio. To this union was born four sons: J. H. Shockley, of Fillmore; C. N. Shockley, of Indianapolis; George Shockley, of Greencastle, and W. H. Shockley. They all survive her except W. H. Shockley, who died in 1862. In the fall of 1850 she, with her husband and three children, moved to Edinburg, Johnson county, Indiana, and later to Morgan county, Indiana. She was left a widow in 1854.

She has lived in Marion township since 1857, when she was united a second time in marriage to Samuel Smyth of Fillmore. To this union was born two sons: Thomas Smyth, of Fillmore, and Ezra Smyth of Greencastle. Both still survive her.

Besides her five sons she leaves two half sisters and a half brother: Mrs. Eliza Snodgrass, of Franklin; Mrs. Emily Clarke, of Edwards, Indiana; William Nicholson, of Columbus, and many other relatives and friends. In the late autumn of life she has ended her harvest at the advanced age of 91 years, 2 months and 14 days, after an illness of about three weeks, on May 28, 1911, at 3:25 p. m.

She was a woman of activity and lived a life of simplicity, truth and honesty, working for harmony and love instead of place and power. The only idleness she ever knew was that enforced by reason of her extreme age and failing eyesight.

Her innate energy led to the achievement of what seemed to less energetic workers impossible of achievement by one of her age.

She was a member of the Fillmore M. E. church and had lived a consistent Christian life throughout the years. To those who feign would weep, let us trust in sing with the poet:

I cannot say and I will not say
That she is dead; she is just away,
With a cheery smile and a wave of the hand,

She has wandered into an unknown land,
And left us dreaming how very fair
It needs must be, since she lingers there,

And you, Oh you, who the wildest yearn
For the old time step and the glad return—
Think of her faring on as dear
In the love of there as the love of here.

Think of her still as the same, I say;
She is not dead; she is just away.

Cloydie Cook, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Cook, went to Terre Haute this morning to spend a week with relatives and take in the Barnum & Bailey Circus there today.

The Greencastle Camp of the Modern Woodmen will meet tonight at 7:30 o'clock in their hall. A full attendance is desired.—Ralph A. Confer, Clerk.

REV. RUDY LEAVES CHRISTIAN CHURCH

ANNOUNCEMENT OF RESIGNATION OF ONE OF GREENCASTLE'S LEADING PASTORS ANNOUNCED FROM THE PULPIT SUNDAY TO GO INTO EVANGELISTIC WORK.

GREENCASTLE TO BE HOME

The Rev. J. M. Rudy, pastor of the Christian church, announced from his pulpit Sunday his resignation as pastor of the church to take effect Sept. 1. The resignation was the result of a conference with his official board.

The retiring pastor stated that financial reasons caused him to sever his connection with the church. He recently has had many calls to do Evangelistic work and intends devoting his entire time to that work hereafter.

Dr. Rudy will remain a resident of Greencastle and will not move from this town, at least until his daughters have completed their University work. Since he began his work here several years ago, Dr. Rudy has increased the membership of his church and has many friends here.

Cuffs and Collars For Mourning Toilette

In choosing the accessories for the mourning toilette one should use great discretion, for here one is so easily led astray, and nothing is in worse taste than russy, over-elaborate mourning dress.

Most of the collars nowadays are sold in a set with cuffs, and to relieve the somber black of a serge or broadcloth suit there are collars and cuffs of white net banded with black crepe, which are most appropriate. With this collar is worn a small bow tie of black taffeta edged with a narrow band of the crepe.

Spanish Buns

A quarter pound of butter one teaspoonful of cream, three quarters of a pound of flour, three heaping teaspoonfuls of baking powder, half a pound of sugar four eggs and three teaspoonfuls of almond water. Sift the baking powder with the flour. Beat the eggs light separately. Cream sugar and butter together; add the beaten egg yolks. Stir in the cream and flour and egg while alternately. Stir in well the three teaspoonfuls of almond water. Bake in a buttered pan and cut in squares.

Salmon Salad

One can salmon chopped fine, four hard boiled eggs, eight lettuce leaves, mix these with a salad dressing made of one-half teaspoonful salt one-half teaspoonful ground mustard, pinch of pepper, one pound sugar, one pound butter, one pound flour, one egg yolk, one-third cup vinegar. Beat butter and blend dry ingredients. Then add egg yolk and vinegar. Cook in double boiler until it thickens. Serve salad on lettuce.

Carrot Pie.

One heaping tablespoonful grated carrot, one heaping tablespoonful flour, one-half cup sugar, yolks of two eggs saving whites for the top, a little dust of nutmeg, one cup of milk, also a piece of butter the size of a walnut. Cook on top of stove to fill piecrust, then beat the white and brown in oven.

THE DISCOURAGED CONVERT

"I'll tell you what I am going to do," vowed the overgrown youth who had been filled with socialistic theory. "I'm going to earn by the work of my own hands the money to pay for the meals I shall eat today."

So he went to the butcher—but the butcher soon found that he could not even wrap up meat.

And he went to the baker—and the baker quickly discharged him because he was incompetent.

And he went to the carpenter—and the carpenter threw him off the job because he could not drive a nail.

Then he went to the printer—and the printer bawled him because he could not even wrap up meat.

Next he tried the store—and the floorwalker told him to quit because he couldn't find the stock.

Then he tried driving a cab—and a policeman sent him to the barns as a danger to traffic.

Then he went to the bricklayer—and gave it up because he couldn't lift the hod.

So he went from place to place, getting hungry and hungrier; and at last applied for a position as waiter in the hotel where he wanted to eat.

But the head waiter would have none of him because he couldn't remember what was ordered.

"Oh, well," he sighed, a working-man has no chance in this country.

So he wrote a check and got the money he needed.—From the Chicago Post.

RULING CHILDREN BY FEAR MAKES THEM DECEITFUL

Terror Leads to Nervous Breakdowns and Runaways Among Little Folk

HE WAS very little; his curly brown head barely came up above the top of the railing in the juvenile court, and his piping little voice was like that of a bird as he told the kindly judge that he had "runned away" because he was afraid to stay home since mother had told him he was going to be carried off by a big black man for being naughty.

"I didn't mean to be naughty," he told the magistrate, the tears brimming over and running down his grimy little cheeks. "I just wanted to play wif the china lady on the mantel-piece and she got broked, and mamma was very, very angry, and she said this time the black man would carry me off for sure—that I was a nuisance and poppa was goin' to spank me, so I ran away."

He couldn't tell where he lived, and his name, he said, was "Just Harold," and so the house of detention took him in, and some place in the great wide city a distracted father and mother are paying with tears and anguish and the awful suspense of not knowing whether the little son is lying in a hospital or a morgue or has been kidnaped for the reign of terror they instituted as discipline.

It's so easy to tell the wee culprit that the boy man will get him unless he is good. It's so easy to threaten to shut him up in the dark closet filled with imaginary and awful demons and animals born of childish dreams, and it seemingly accomplishes its purpose, but it breeds deceit in little hearts, teaches children to avoid telling of small sins, leads to lying, to the destroying of youthful love and faith in parental justice, and, ah, so often to the scores of runaways that fill the juvenile court, whose walls echo daily to so many little tragedies of childhood.

Down in Washington where the Mothers' Congress is holding its sessions, it has been unanimously voted that fear should have no part in home discipline; but what those wise women are planning for the future of their own little ones does not materially aid the hundreds of boys and girls who are dominated by the specter of fear instilled into them by nurses or mothers.

It cannot all at once put an end to the first lies told by white and trembling baby lips driven to anything to escape the awful fate which threatens them, and it cannot turn back the little feet that have already taken the first step down the path of deceit that leads in time to crime.

The tragedies and sorrow of the little folk are so very real to them, and youthful imaginations are so easily inflamed that the wise mother will avoid even tales of horror, much less threats of some punishment undescribed, except vaguely.

Don't you remember how, when you were little, the great black shadows crept upstairs after you, and how, when the light was taken away, strange beasts crept beneath the bed, and don't you remember how dark and awful it was in the closet, even when somebody shut the door for fun?

And can't you, too, remember the days when, conscious of naughtiness, you sat brooding, shivering and waiting for the punishment you knew was coming?

Ah, my heart goes out to the little lad in the house of detention, and to all those others driven from the faith and confidence that belong to them by right.

Filet Lace Important In Trimming Frocks

Lace is an important factor in dress and hat trimmings this season, and of all the laces none is more important than filet mesh. Most of this is of the machine-made variety, of course, and while it is decidedly attractive, is not so expensive. A new idea in the embroidering of this lace is to use narrow silk ribbon instead of the variously colored or white floss.

"Sporty" Shoes

Shoes of black and white checks to match the costume they are to be worn with, will make the mildest tailored suit look "sporty." These are fastened with white pearl buttons, the buttonholes being worked in black silk.

Some of these shoes are made with the bottom portion for black patent leather, and with only the uppers of checked goods, while the most extreme show the entire shoe of the same cloth.

In the Barnyard.

"Look how queerly that hen is acting. Do you think she is hatching a plot?"

"No; I think she is plotting a hatch."—Baltimore American.

Never give drugs to a horse any more than you would to a baby unless he is downright sick. Shutting off his feed will cure all minor ills.

WHAT IS THE AVERAGE HOUSEHOLD EXPENSE?

Many Appeals for Actual Cost of Living Are Received

BREATHING of a half-hearted prudence that sighs to be overthrown, and revealing even one little romance of the everyday business world, three letters have come to me, each asking the same question—how much money must a man have before he can marry?

This is further complicated in two of them by the still more mooted question as to whether a business woman should give up her own good salary and attempt to live on half what her husband earns.

Yet all three letters lying open before me now call up visions of the earnest young lovers, so anxious to wed, to have their own little home and to taste the wondrous joys of being together "for always," yet haunted by that bugaboo of modern days, "the high cost of living."

Of the three, two men are making $19 a week and have a few hundred saved up, while the third is making $20 a week, but except for a hundred dollars he has paid down on a home, he has nothing in the bank for a rainy day.

And they expect me to solve their perplexities! Expect me to be able to settle just what it costs to maintain a household when the columns of the daily press tell every day of how one woman was unable to live on $15,000 a year, and of another who lived on six cents a day—and so on, until the only answer that it seems possible to give with fairness is the time-worn adage that "circumstances alter cases."

In the first place if a girl has been used to living economically; if she has no extravagant tastes and does not expect to entertain and is willing to do her own housework in the new home, she and her husband may live on at least moderate comfort upon $18 or $20 a week. At least I know of married couples and even those with a growing family who have accomplished it, but—not if the wife is used to little luxuries or much spending money.

Even this is not wise to attempt, however, without some money in the bank, for the possibility of a lost position, of weeks out of work, the chance of sickness and the many other misfortunes that lie along the path of the years must be taken into consideration, and they soon become specifiers that overshadow even love itself, if there is no little nest egg to stave them off when the "rainy day" comes.

Then, too, the question must come up as to the income which the wife has been earning, since all these three are love stories that had their beginning amidst the hurly-burly of the world of work.

The girl or woman who has been used to earning a fair sum for herself and having it to spend, once her board was paid, will find it a great deprivation to do without this. She will find that there is little or no money for occasional flowers or ice cream or matinee trips such as she secured with her own salary, and she must love the man a very great deal to be willing to sacrifice this for him.

But sacrifice she must. For a home where man and wife both work is seldom a real home, since outside duties must of necessity keep the wife away as much as the husband and tend toward shattering the home ties between them, because of separate careers.

On the other hand this is really better than the case of the wife, who, after the first zest of her household duties and economies has worn off, begins to nag and fret over how differently they might live if "she were the wage earner."

Broom Repays Good Care Taken of It

A good broom is the housewife's best friend in springtime, when her thoughts are full of the housecleaning which must soon be begun. Even the best and most expensive broom can be improved if, when first bought, it is soaked in hot salt water.

This toughens the bristles and makes the broom last longer. An added precaution might be given, and that is never stand the broom on its handle, nor yet on the broom end, but hang it from a nail in the wall.

Coat Suits for Summer

Coat suits in linens and silks are especially smart at the present moment and an astonishing number of them are being sold for spring and summer wear. The sailor collar is seen on most of them, and in many cases these run to deep points in front and are covered with ecru fillet or Venetian lace. These lace collars in Venetian with cuffs to match may be bought at any of the shops and lend a dainty touch to a dark suit.

Pretty Fans

Feather fans are much in vogue this year and make a dainty gift for the graduate. The majority of these are in white, with prettily carved stems of ivory or sandalwood, although some very attractive fans are in pale colors. One of the prettiest was made of white feathers, with a band at the top of the fan in delicately shaded pink.

TO FORGET OFTEN IS BETTER THAN TO REMEMBER

No One Is Happier For Retaining Memory of Past Sights

IT SEEMS like heresy to say that to be able to forget is just as much an asset to the girl who would be successful as to be able to remember—but that it is an asset is true, nevertheless.

But let me explain—"He who is blessed with a good memory receives a gift from the gods; but he who can forget that which will cause unhappiness by being remembered receives the best gift the gods can offer."

And here in a single paragraph is expressed the whole reason why to be able to forget is invaluable to the business girl and, in fact, to any of us.

Is any one the happier for retaining the memory of a slight, or a failure, or past unhappiness? Is it not a source of annoyance to have the conversation of which you were the subject, and which was told you in confidence, always turning up in your mind?

The more you think of it, the more it rankles, whereas if in the beginning, you had put it out of your mind, had determined that if the conversation really took place it was most unkind and therefore not worthy of attention, how much lighter of heart you would be and how much better able you would be to tackle the duties of the day.

The girl in business benefits greatly by cultivating this faculty of forgetfulness, for there are a hundred and one little trials and troubles which fly around and irritate, like mosquitoes in summer.

But, while we can't stop the troubles any more than we can the mosquitoes from stinging, there is a way to relieve the sting, and it is with "life's best balm—forgetfulness."

There are so many things in life worth remembering that it seems absurd to thrust these aside to make room for those which will not only be of no benefit, but will be absolutely harmful.

If the business man who has failed tries to build up a new business, remembering always that he failed before and that the opinions and views of several business associates regarding the same failure were anything but encouraging, don't you think the very weight of that thought would be a large factor in making him fail again?

His confidence in himself would be badly shattered, and in making success out of failure self-confidence is indispensable.

But if he could take the sting out of those memories by applying forgetfulness judiciously, he could embark on his business life again with a light heart.

And if he is really a very wise man, the mistakes in his first venture will be beacon lights in the future, warning him from the shoals and bars on which his second business venture might be wrecked.

And as it is with the business man, so it is with the stenographer. If she can apply the same balm to the myriad trials which infect each day in the office and at home as well, she will have discovered something which will help her on to happiness and make success be easier of attainment.

Many New Frocks Have Dainty Satin Girdles

Very few of the summer frocks whether elaborate or simple do not show some sort of sash or girdle arrangements. Big bows and long, wide scarf ends of black maline appear on some of the light hued models and the new velvet with a taffeta back in color is effectively used for sash effects.

In these velvet sashes there is a wide end in two loops lying flat, one over the other, but of different lengths. This gives much of the effect of a detached skirt panel and breaks the tight line of the skirt in back without producing any fullness.

Irish Cake.

One cup of butter, two cups of sugar (creamed); add yolks of eggs, beaten. Tablespoonful of cloves, tablespoonful of cinnamon, one-half nutmeg, one-half cup chopped English walnuts, one-half cup chopped white seedless raisins, one-half cup sweet milk, one-half cup of granulated chocolate, one teaspoonful of vanilla, one cup mashed potatoes seasoned as for table, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder sifted in two cups of flour, and whites of four eggs beaten, and added alternately.

Bake in layer and ice with caramel icing, or bake in loaf cake.

The craze for embroidery has touched everything that millady wears. The latest silk gloves are elaborately worked in diverse colored silks with a slight showing of silver and gold thread.

White shoes and slippers, buttoned and laced, will be a fad of the warmer spring and summer days. These will be worn on the street quite as much as in the house or for evening.

GIRLS EXPECT TOO MUCH FROM MEN

NOW that spring is here with all its little outings in the parks and outside places of amusement, the youth who was called upon in the winter to pay for theater tickets must turn his mind on making both ends meet around the pleasure trips he must take his girl friends on, in order that they may still consider him a "good sport."

How many of you girls, I wonder, expect a young fellow who has been working only a few years and who makes probably not much more than yourself, to take you to all the amusement parks, buy ice cream, possibly dinner, and then, not to appear stingy, take another little girl out the next evening?

Don't you think it is rather hard on the chap, when he has to work pretty hard for his few dollars a week, to expect him to spend a large per cent of them on you; and then to dress as you expect him to, pay his board and carfare and lunch money for the next week?

Riding on the street car the other day I overheard a conversation between two boys who were hardly more than 19, and if they had not been so much in earnest one would have laughed heartily at them.

"Here, let me pay half, Bob," said one.

"Well, I guess you won't," said the other. "That was my party and I'm going to pay. But, gee, girls do cost a lot, don't they?"

Bob agreed very strenuously that they did and stated that he sometimes felt that he would have "to chuck the girls altogether, for if a fellow didn't take them to the shows in winter and to the parks in summer they'd call him a parlor weight and a tightwad and laugh and talk about him to the other girls."

"Well," said Bob, "I guess it's because the girls don't think about what we make a week," and he gazed contemplatively at his sky blue socks, dotted with black and white. "They seem to think that all we make money for is to blow it in on them, and even then they forget that we don't make any too much."

And right here, girls, is the crux of the whole matter. You don't realize that these young chaps don't make as much as a man, and if they know all the girls you know and are expected to distribute their attentions equally, they are often hard put to it to make their salary stretch to meet your demands.

Let him see that he is welcome to come once in a while; find out what he is interested in and keep the conversation in those channels. But, for goodness sake, don't begin telling him of Johnnie Jones and the way he holds down the parlor sofa, with never so much as an invitation to go to the moving picture show.

To Clean Lamp Globe Blacked With Smoke

When lamp chimneys have become very black from smoke, the grease in many cases will not yield to water. If a little spirits of wine be added to the water, however, the grease contained in the lampblack will yield with but little trouble.

When polishing the chimneys use a soft cambric or tissue paper, since cloth generally leaves lint on the glass.

Collarless Yokes

Dainty blouses and thin frocks made with a collarless yoke of Irish lace will be popular during the coming months. In fact, many of the more expensive waists show this arrangement at the neck, of a square cut, collarless yoke of embroidered linen or lawn or of lace, attached to the blouse.

New Browns

Many new shades of brown are shown in the new tailor-mades, two of these being known as Egyptian sand and cedar brown. A suit of either shade in homespun with trimmings of black relieved with the merest touch of a harmonizing shade of blue would make an exceedingly smart costume if made in the new double breasted bolero style with the wide revers and kimono sleeves.

New Marquisette Waist

The girl who wears black through the summer will welcome the new black and white marquisette waists. In these the lower part of the blouse is of black, while the upper part, which is cut in one with the sleeves, is of white marquisette, tucked and inset with lace and gives a better and more dressy appearance than does the plain white shirtwaist and black skirt.

Artificial Quills

Many of the new quills are made of anything but the real quill, velvet, satin and even tiny feathers pasted on the stem being used on the smart little walking hats.

One of the last mentioned was made of tiny white feathers, the stem in the middle being black. At the ends the feathers were tinged a delicate brown and the artificial quill made a pretty trimming for a little hat of brown straw.

SUMMERY PILLOW COVERS OF RAFFIA AND LINEN

The art needlework departments show many pretty and dainty articles, pillow tops, work baskets, collar and cuff sets, and all stamped with the newest designs and generally in colors, this denoting what shades of silk to use to make an artistically colored whole.

Of these, the pillow covers are most fascinating. One especially pretty and summery cover was of raffia cloth, stamped with a wild rose design, and this showed the different length of stitches to be used, each one being marked with a certain number which meant a certain shade of pink, or yellow or green, whichever color was to be used in carrying out the flower.

Use of Tissue Paper In Braiding Blouse

A simple and economical way in which to braid a blouse or frock is to trace the design on tissue paper, then baste this to the material that is to be braided. Sew on the braid through both paper and material until the design has been covered, after which remove the paper by carefully tearing off, being careful to take all the tiny pieces from among the threads.

The paper method has this advantage when used on light material—it saves the goods from soil, although it works equally well with dark material.

Washing Fluid

Take one pound sal soda, one-half pound good stone lime, five quarts of water; boil a short time, let it settle and pour off the clear water into a stone jug, and cork for use; soak four white clothes over night in plain water, wring out, and soap wristbands, collars and dirty or stained places; have your boiler half filled with water just beginning to boil, then put in one common teaspoonful of fluid, stir, and put in your clothes; boil for half an hour, then rub lightly through one suds only and all is complete.

The vague for stripes which is shown in all the new silks of the spring has even reached mohairs, and this popular and serviceable fabric now comes in many delicate shades with shadow or well defined stripes on it.

The striped effect is really far more artistic than the plainer material and is being used for many summer suits in place of the linens.

Striped flannel will be another material much used this summer, and made up in a semi-tailored effect with broad black satin sailor collar and cuffs, it makes a far smarter costume than the linen and has an equal advantage as far as its ability to be laundered is concerned.

Lace is the first choice as an adornment for the bridal gown.

Women's Secrets

There is one man in the United States who has perhaps heard more women's secrets than any other man or woman in the country. These secrets are not secrets of guilt or shame, but the secrets of suffering, and they have been confided to Dr. R. V. Pierce in the hope and expectation of advice and help. That few of these women have been disappointed in their expectations is proved by the fact that ninety-eight per cent. of all women treated by Dr. Pierce have been absolutely and altogether cured. Such a record would be remarkable if the cases treated were numbered by hundreds only. But when that record applies to the treatment of more than half-a-million women, in a practice of over 40 years, it is phenomenal, and entitles Dr. Pierce to the gratitude accorded him by women, as the first of specialists in the treatment of women's diseases.

Every sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, absolutely without charge. All replies are mailed, sealed in perfectly plain envelopes, without any printing or advertising whatever, upon them. GARDENING TOOLS FOR THE AMATEUR

Proper Implements Are Real Necessity and Aid to Flower Raisers.

AS SOON as the lilac buds begin to burst into leaves the amateur gardener knows that the ground is sufficiently free from frost to admit of its being dug up and raked and prepared for the tiny seeds which, when they grow into plants and burst into bloom in the summer, will be a source of joy to her.

The woman to whom flower raising is an unstated pleasure would do well to first see that she had a proper stock of gardening implements, and she should keep these in a special closet or devote one corner of the cellar or shed to them.

A couple of trowels of different sizes are absolute necessities, as are a rake and a light-weight spade. If she is going to plant a kitchen garden a hoe should be added to these.

A supply of strong, slender stakes, from a foot and a half to three feet, should be laid in and some strong cord. When tacks and a hammer are needed, which they will be in the case of planting sweet peas or other running plants, these may be borrowed from the kitchen.

Another useful implement is a pair of stout shears, and, most important of all, when the summer sun thirstily drinks up all the moisture in the ground, is the watering pot, which should be equipped with several nozzles, with varying sizes of perforations. And a pair of gardening gloves might be added to these other tools.

But it is most important that these should be religiously kept in their own corner, and as soon as one day's gardening has been finished the earth clinging to them scraped off and each implement put in its proper place.

Floouncing Used in Lingerie Frocks

Many of the new embroidered floouncings show the straight instead of the scalloped edge. This is a smart idea and the floouncing made in this fashion can be successfully used in street frocks as well as the more elaborate patterns.

Lingerie frocks made of floouncing are becoming more and more popular and the reason for this, perhaps, is that with such a dress there is no need for insertions of embroidery and lace.

The only additional expense after that for the floouncing is the plain lawn or batiste bought for the rest of the frock.

Dainty Pique Coats For Small Maidens

Pique and heavy linen coats for the small girl are dainty and although cool looking are quite warm enough for late spring. These are sometimes lined with white washable china silk, which makes the inside soft and adds but little warmth when the coat is for summer wear.

Made of white pique, with collar and cuffs of delicately colored velvet or satin, these are attractive models to wear over the dainty little frock.

Glove Handkerchiefs

Dainty little glove handkerchiefs, from three to five inches square, come in colored linen the same as the larger squares. Some of these are so decorated with lace and embroidery that one wonders of what use the center square inch of fine linen is. However, they are the daintiest of confessions, and for their beauty alone one would readily forgive their apparent uselessness.

Clarify Coffee

One egg will clarify two pounds of coffee. Separate the white from the yolk and beat until a stiff froth is formed. Stir the coffee into this with a brisk, firm touch until every bean has been coated. Then spread on a large platter to dry.

Before putting the coffee into its tin, place the platter in the warming oven, that the beans may regain their crispness.

Pretty Underwear

Cotton vests for summer are now gotten up in most attractive style, and for a very small sum lace edged, ribbon trim garments may be added to one's stock of underwear.

These come in colors as do the silk vests, the lace at the top and bottom being dyed the same shade.

Tipsy Cake

Moisten any kind of plain cake with wine, cover it with rich boiled custard and top it with an uncooked meringue with eggs beaten stiff and a little sugar. Sift a little grated cocoanut over it and serve. This is an easily prepared dainty dessert.

Real Realism.

Things That Men Can't Understand About Women

Why Does a Wife Have to Be Told Constantly That Her Husband Loves Her?

"THE thing that I can't understand about women," said the fourth man, "is why you have to be continually telling a woman of your love to keep her pacified."

"It doesn't make a particle of difference what you do to prove your affection. You may work for a woman on like a dray horse, and fetch and carry for her like a dog, and sacrifice yourself before her like a blooming martyr. After you've killed yourself for her, as a slight proof of your devotion, she'll call on your shade to ask it: 'Do you love me?'"

"On the other hand you may beat her, and starve her, and neglect her, and if you'll swear in good round oats, every day, how you adore her, she'll go around bragging about what a perfect husband she's got, and what a lucky draw she made in the matrimonial lottery. Yes, and by George, all the other women will envy her."

"Now, it never occurs to a man to ask his wife if she loves him. She has assured him that she did, and married him to prove it, and, to his mind, gives ample confirmation that her feelings haven't changed by putting up with his cranks and doing a thousand things every day to make him comfortable."

"So he lets it go at that. He isn't always trying to take the temperature of her affections, nor lying awake at night wondering if she is ceasing to care for him because he is getting fat and bald."

Those Sweet, Pious Perjuries.

"But that's exactly what a woman does, unless her husband tells her every day that she gets younger and prettier all the time, and that, if she should die, he would throw himself into the river. Probably the woman knows that all these things are lies; but it makes her so happy to hear them that a man is a stingy brute who refrains from handing her out a few of these pious perjuries."

"Of course, it takes a good many years of matrimony for a man to find out what an over-valuation women put on soft talk, but when he does, he's got the magic combination by which he can work a woman to a finish."

"It's a little trouble, naturally, to be always fanning your wife with hot air, but it makes her blissful and enables you to do what you please, and so it's worth all the effort."

"Now, I married a girl with whom I was madly in love. She was above me in social standing and wealth, and I had the foolish idea that the way to show my devotion to her, and my appreciation of the sacrifice she had made for love of me, was to get busy and justify her choice of a husband by making a man of myself."

"So I humped my shoulders and worked for all I was worth. Finally I woke up, one day, to the fact that my wife was thin, and haggard, and had a broken-hearted look about her. She Simply Wanted to Be Told."

"I was frightened, and entreated her to tell me what was the matter, and with tears and sobs she replied that it was because I didn't love her."

"Not love you," I cried, "why I worship the very ground you walk on. Don't you see that I am working myself to death for your sake, because I don't think there's anything good enough for you, and I want you to have the best?"

"Well, if you love me why didn't you tell me so?" she exclaimed, and that's the way of it. A woman is just as much bound to be continually told that she is loved, as she is compelled to have daily food and drink."

"That little episode with my wife put me wise, and ever since I have worn a string around my finger, so to speak, to remind me to pay my wife a few compliments every morning; and those little foolish words have made all the struggles, and labor, and suffering of wifehood and motherhood worth while to her."

"It's a queer thing this mania, this obsession women have for being told that they are loved, but it makes the way easy for any man who is a glib talker."

The Man Higher Up.

Crack! Crack! Crash! The skaters turned and fled. But one, less fortunate than the rest, was overtaken by the widening crack, threw up his hands and he fell in with a heavy splash.

"Help!" "He's drowning!" "Get a ladder!"

At last the ladder was procured. Cautiously approaching the pool, which was ornamented by the luckless man's head and shoulders, the park keeper placed the ladder in position and began to creep along it.

"Come in a bit closer!" he shouted. "I can't swim," answered the impromptu bather.

"But you're only up to your armpits, man," said the park keeper. "You ain't got no need to swim. Walk."

"Walk be blowed!" responded the other. "This water's ten feet deep." "Ten feet deep?" exclaimed the park keeper. "Then how are you keeping up?"

"How?" retorted the bather. "Why, I'm standing on the bloke that broke the ice!"

LINEN BED CLOTHS ARE BEST FOR THE SUMMER

The majority of housewives think that if bed linen is clean and exhales a faint fragrance of lavender, no more should be asked by even the most fastidious of persons. Yet there are many points about bed linen that she would be wise to take into consideration.

One is that while cotton sheets are the most comfortable in weight, with the coming of the warm weather linen sheets will be found much more satisfactory, since they are far cooler in touch than cotton ones.

Light-weight blankets should also be used in the summer time, and linen pillow cases on hair pillows substituted for the feather pillows and cotton covers of the winter months.

Be sure, too, that you buy bed linen that is big enough for the bed. For most of us have at some time suffered from the inability to pull up the covers without thrusting our feet out at the other end, while a lack of width is equally uncomfortable, especially in a double bed.

Cheap linens are always a poor investment, since they do not wear well and are apt to turn dark in the washing. This is the month of linen sales, however, and both sheets and pillow cases that are a little soiled may be purchased for small prices at the shops these days.

The linen sheets come with hem-stitched tops and are most effective, having pillow cases to match. Plain white shams with hemstitched borders and a monogram in the center and plain white spreads are also, by the way, cooler and cleaner looking for the hot weather than the colored ones.

Creole Dishes

Creole Gumbo

Cut in pieces a young chicken. Wash and sprinkle with salt and pepper and fry in hot lard. Pack the pieces in your cooker kettle. Pour away some of the lard if you think there is too much left in your pan, and into the remaining slice a large onion. When the pieces are tender but not brown add a spoonful of flour. Brown this carefully, adding gradually a little hot water, that it may not burn. Have ready some small pieces of ham, two dozen oysters, two dozen boiled shrimps and add these to the contents of the pan. Then pour over the whole three pints of boiling water. Cook together for a few minutes and pour over your chicken. There should be enough liquor in the kettle to cover the whole. Boil five minutes, season to taste and place in the cooker. You will want to put your gumbo on the fire 15 minutes before you are ready to serve, in order to reduce the gravy. Pour into a tureen, sprinkle with chopped parsley and send to the table with rice, cooked dry.

It is worse than useless to take any medicine internally for muscular or chronic rheumatism. All that is needed is a free application of Chamberlain's Liniment. For sale by all dealers.

FRENCH JEWELRY IS MUCH IN VOGUE

Delicate Designs Introduced In Inexpensive Ornaments For Spring.

"PASTE JEWELS" are no longer relegated to the land that lies beyond the footlights, for nowadays the so-called French jewelry is as popular as real gems among even the most fashionable women.

Every month brings forth new wonders of cunningly wrought brooches and pendants of quartz crystal, enamel or the semi-precious stones, and all the art of the jeweler is now centered upon the delicate traceries of plated gold that surround these novel ornaments.

Quaint hand-wrought finger rings, shirtwaist sets and pendants all must match if a girl would be in style these days, while long "coat chains" from which hang enameled vanity boxes offer suggestions for carrying out the touch of color that appears in milady's hat and blouse.

One thing must be remembered, however, in selecting such articles, that is, that everything must match.

If the brooch that is caught in the soft frill of the blouse is set with blue stones to match the touch of blue in the hat, the coat chain and the belt buckle must have the same stones, for the only charm of these semi-precious gems is their ability to blend into a color scheme and enable a girl to have full "sets" of jewels for every costume.

Even the long drop earrings now come to match these different gems, and the effect is both artistic and charming with a light suit.

The vogue for black and white has also, by the way, entered into the designs of the makers of french jewelry, and some exquisite little pendants are now shown of black enamel with a design in silver and a thread-like border or a vivid enamel about the edge.

Black and white is also introduced into the ornaments of gun metal chains and in various articles for the up-to-date girl.

Jambalaya of Chicken

Fry in hot lard a young chicken and slices of raw ham. Pack into the kettle of the cooker. Now fry a sliced onion, a couple of tomatoes and when they are nearly done, a cupful of rice, stirring constantly. Pour these over the chicken, add enough boiling water to cover, season with salt, bay leaves, chopped parsley, thyme, and a bit of red pepper. Boil ten minutes and transfer to the cooker. Before sending to the table you may have to reduce the gravy a little, as this should be served rather dry.

Chicken a la Creole

This is made in almost the same manner as jambalaya of chicken, except that you add a can of sweet peppers and omit the rice. If your chicken is very young you will scarcely leave it more than two or three hours in the cooker.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Ever mindful of your best interests, kind friends, the Herald takes pleasure in announcing that Dr. Spaulhurst has arranged for his associate, Dr. Vernon T. Sanford, to reside in Greencastle in order to give still more efficient service to friends and patrons. This will be most welcome news of Osteopathy, because it enables them to secure an osteopath in emergencies for acute troubles as well as in chronic cases.

To serve the best interests of their growing practice treatment will be given at night by appointment to those whose work prevents them from coming during regular office hours.

Dr. Spaulhurst and associates received their training immediately under the founder of osteopathy at Kirksville, Mo., and they number among their patients the most intellectual and cultured of Greencastle and Indianapolis.

Greencastle is to be congratulated on the character and efficiency of the osteopathic services made available by reason of a resident osteopath and our gratitude is due Dr. Spaulhurst for making it possible.

We should welcome aid that wisely comes from Nature's handmaid, Osteopathy. Nature's own methods are knocking at our door. Here lies our opportunity, if we are in earnest, to get well and to stay well. We commend these Nature doctors to the afflicted of this community, and we bespeak for them the liberal patronage and support to which their fair dealing and effectual methods entitle them.

Facial Beauty Note.

"If you wish to retain your position with us, Mr. Green," said the head of the firm, "it will be necessary to pay more attention to your personal appearance. You look as though you had not been shaved for a week."

"But I'm growing a beard, sir," exclaimed the unfortunate fellow.

"That's no excuse, sir," replied the chief in stately tones: "you must do that sort of thing out of business hours."—Life.

Not Worth While.

"No," said the honest lawyer. "I don't care to take your case."

"Why not?" queried the would-be client.

"You are so thin-skinned," answered the legal light, "that it would not pay me to skin you."

A Charming Woman.

is one who is lovely in face, form and temper. But it's hard for a woman to be charming without health. A weak, sickly woman will be nervous and irritable. Constipation and kidney poisons show in pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. But Electric Bitters always prove a godsend to women who want good health, beauty and friends. They regulate Stomach, Liver and Kidneys, purify the blood; give strong nerves, bright eyes, pure breath, smooth, velvety skin, lovely complexion and perfect health. The Pilot Shoe Shop

Right Side of Post Office

Gentlemen of Terre Haute on a recent visit to Greencastle said:—The Pilot Shoe Shop is equal of anything we have in Terre Haute. We did not realize that Greencastle had such a up-to-date shoe repair shop and the leather and finishings that prevail in this shop are so much better than in Terre Haute that we are amazed.

The Pilot Shoe Shop gives more for the price you pay than any other Shoe Shop in Greencastle.

Bishop Potter's Pledge.

The Rev. Dr. Leighton Parks, rector of St. Bartholomew's church, New York, tells this story of the late Bishop Potter: "It is known to a few that while still a young man Dr. Potter was called upon to deal with a parishioner who had become intemperate. In the course of the conversation the man remarked: 'But you also drink wine,' to which came the quick response, 'If you will promise never to touch intoxicants again so will I.' The double pledge was given, and never broken on either side, and this at a time when Dr. Potter was pointed at by the comic newspapers as a 'wine bibber.'"

Perfectly Laid.

A New Yorker who paid a visit last summer to a Kentucky planter had his slumbers disturbed by mosquitoes. When he mentioned this to his host the latter declared that they never annoyed him.

The next day he commented upon this fact to the colonel's negro valet, who accounted for the phenomenon in this way:

"De fust part ob de night de kumel am so drunk dat he don't feel de skeeters, an' de las' part ob de night de skeeters am so drunk dat dey don't bodder de kumel."

He Was Perfectly Willing.

Artemus Ward and a friend were one day discussing sacrifices when the friend asked the humorist: "Don't you think, for instance, that if a war should break out we should be willing to sacrifice our relatives for the sake of our country?"

"Yes," said Ward. "I'd be willing, for the sake of my country, to sacrifice all my wife's relatives if need be."

Too Busy.

"Mamma," asked little three-year-old Freddie, "are we going to heaven some day?"

"Yes, dear; I hope so," was the reply.

"I wish papa could go, too," continued the little fellow.

"Well, and don't you think he will?" asked his mother.

"Oh, no," replied Freddie, "he could not leave his business."

A Yawning Void.

"No mere mortal," declared the professor in astronomy, "can comprehend the immensity of space."

"I think I can," ventured one of his auditors.

"And why you?"

"I have a daily humorous column to fill up."

His Hands Full.

"Marks is having a hard time contesting his wife's will."

"I didn't know she was dead."

CHANGES MADE IN NICARAGUA

Great Industrial Progress
Noted Since Estrada Regime Came In Power.

AEROPLANE MAILS

But Few Hours Will Be Required to Deliver Letters.

Bluefields, Nicaragua — The arrangements are now being made it is said, for importation of a cargo of aeroplanes. They are to be used in carrying mail between Managua, other cities on the west coast and interior towns and ports along the East coast.

At present transportation of mail is as slow as the natives can make it. Bluefields and Port Zelaya are about 70 miles apart, both being on the east coast, yet it frequently takes three weeks or a month for mail to reach one point from the other.

Residents in Bluefields desiring to send mail to Cape Gracias, 120 miles to the north, find the best plan is to send it by steamer to New Orleans, thence back on the same steamer to the cape. In this manner a letter will reach its destination in about two weeks.

Mail sent from the City of Mexico, the middle of October 1909 for Bluefields reached there less than ten days ago. Mail from Bluefields for Managua is frequently sent to New Orleans, thence to San Francisco and down the coast on a Pacific mail steamer.

This can be accomplished in a month, and is much less time than is required to get mail to the interior. But the elimination of the railway and the installation of the airship will insure rapid delivery of mail.

Nicaraguans have been too busy fighting among themselves for personal gain to plan industrial development. Lying along the river of the east coast are still millions of undeveloped acres that could be made to yield fortunes. Buried but a few feet beneath the surface at the headwaters of these streams are untold quantities of gold, silver and other metals.

More nuggets of pure gold have been picked up along the mountain streams of Nicaragua than in any other republic or monarchy of the world.

In no other climate does fruit, oranges, grape fruit, pineapples, bananas reach such a stage of perfection. Know these facts, the natives, Indians and Spaniards, a mixed breed of 57 varieties have gone along eking out an existence with a possible exception here and there Graft has been their watchword, their idol, their one aim in life. Work is a new word for them.

There is plenty of liquor in Bluefields and all other settlements in the republic. Whiskey may be purchased in practically every store. Immorality is the curse of the nation and before Nicaragua can ever assume a sitting posture among nations, its moral code must be reversed.

The United States government may lend assistance, and by the use of the iron hand, keep down revolutions but before it becomes a real nation, the white man who comes inside its gates must be clean and wholesome. Therein rests the blame of the immorality of the natives.

From the incoming tide of immigration those foreigners who have flocked here since hostilities ceased, and the United States government recognized Estrada as president, much is expected.

For the major part they are men who have invested and are investing money in agricultural or mineral lands. Just at present a revival in the banana industry is taking place. Men from the middle west and north are investing heavily in bananas, rice and fibre lands.

Along the Rio Grande river, jungles are being cleared and planted in bananas. A customs house is being built there for handling of products and a large boat is now plying back and forth on the river. Steel barges are on their way to the river to be used in the banana trade.

Bluefields, has within its grasp the wherewithal to advance to one of the treasure lands of the world. Whether it does so or not remains to be seen.

Anomaly in the Railroad World

GIVING orders to men who are earning twice as much as you might seem a bit strange to any one but a railroad man," a trainmaster on one of the many western railways remarked.

"But that's just what one has to do," he continued. "Take almost any railway in the country and you will find that the men who are giving orders are getting pay checks that look mighty small beside the checks of those who are 'bossed.'"

"Take the trainmaster, for instance. He gets a title and $150 a month or so. He punks down in his office and tells the conductors how to run their trains and the engineers how to take the sidings and 'calls them down' when they make mistakes. And the chances are that the engineer who is getting the orders makes $200 a month. He is being bossed by a man who gets $50 less for every thirty days he works. The conductors' check may be as large as or even larger than the engine driver's."

"Think of leaning back in an easy chair and telling a man that you'll give him $50 more than he got if he works for you. Then, if he doesn't suit you after he's been on the road for a time, you call him in, take his job away from him, and give some one else the $200 a month, while you struggle along on the measly $150."

According to the trainmaster, half the railway "officials" whose names appear in big print on the time cards are receiving less wages than those whom they employ. The average chief dispatcher, who does the major part of the real work in operating a railroad, earns $500 and gets $175 a month.

The division passenger agent, who gives orders to the passenger conductors, arranges for special trains, acts as a buffer between the travelling public and the complaint department, and who has other troubles, varied and numerous, finds his pay check amounting to $125, $150 or $175.

There are exceptions, of course to the general rule of low paid officials. The superintendent, who has charge of a few hundred miles, may receive anything from $2,000 to $5,000 annually, for running the division.

GUARD AGAINST HOUSE FLY.

We now know that malaria owes its existence in the human system to the agency of a mosquito; that another mosquito transmits the deadly germ of yellow fever, and that the filthy house fly, altogether too common in our homes, may be under certain conditions the means of conveying the germ of typhoid from filth to articles of food.

In one year the bees have sent to market a product worth nearly as much as the barley crop; three times as much as the buckwheat crop; $6,000,000 greater than the rice crop and nearly $9,000,000 greater than the rice crop. All of the rice and buckwheat grown on an aggregate area of 2,126 1-3 square miles did not reach to the value of the honey by $151,259.

It is worse than useless to take any medicine internally for muscular or chronic rheumatism. All that is needed is a free application of Chamberlain's Liniment. For sale by all dealers.
